Address Before The Ohio Wesleyan University At Delaware, Ohio, June 20, 1893. Mr. President, Members Of The Board Of Trustees, Members Of The Faculty, Ladies And Gentlemen: Rutherford Birchard Hayes, nineteenth President of the United States, born in this city on October 4, 1822, was a great and good man--great in all that was good; good in all that was great. He was a fortunate man; fortunate in his ancestry; fortunate in his noble mother; fortunate in all the influences of a Christian home; fortunate in his early training and higher education; fortunate in the happiest of marriages; fortunate in his professional experience, in his service as a volunteer soldier, in the uncertain paths of politics; fortunate in every public and private relation. He was fortunate, and he deserved to be. He improved his opportunities; he accepted every responsibility as a sacred trust for which true account must be rendered. He received his earliest education in the Delaware public schools. From here he went to the Academy at Norwalk, Ohio, and later to the preparatory school at Middletown, Conn. , to prepare for college. He entered Kenyon College at Gambier, Ohio, in the fall of 1838. He was a close student, one of the best debaters in the literary societies of that college, and at his graduation was probably one of the most popular men of his class--that of 1842. He graduated at the head of his class and delivered a...
