I. The wholesale, and inconsiderate, condemnation of Non-Christian forms of Belief, and of the adherents of such Belief, theologically, morally, intellectually, without any exception, palliation, or excuse. I have only to allude to the common-form description of Mahometanism, and Mahometans. II. The idea, which seems to prevail, that we have no sooner got rid of these Non-Christian Beliefs, than some form of real Christianity will occupy the vacuum, and the customs, traditions, and familiar notions, of millions of men will be washed off the slate of the minds of men, and there will be a new creature morally, materially, and intellectually, as well as, what we all hope, spiritually. A poor Zulu girl, who had been really converted, and was a consistent Christian, remarked, that she never saw a great splash of red paint on a rock, without a momentary - only a momentary - heart-feeling, that she was neglecting the worship of the gods of her forefathers: so deep an impression had the pagan customs of her childhood made upon her. In this sense all the Non-Christian world are in a state of childhood, or partial slumber, or spiritual torpor. Still, they are all children of the one great Father, and Christ died on the Cross for all without exception,...
